Subject: Another WHRB ghost (and Sports Department alum) says hello....

Mr. Jassy: This past Friday I listened to Don Fishman, Assistant General Manager of the Washington Capitals deliver the keynote at the Arlington Virginia Chamber of Commerce annual lunch. He noted that he was the former “voice of Harvard hockey” as he related his work on salary cap issues and the great partnership the Caps have with Arlington, Virginia – home to their practice facility.

I introduced myself to him in my role as County Manager here in Arlington and we spent some time talking about our mutual adventures in the Sports Department at WHRB many years ago (graduated in 1982). In the discussion about Amazon’s arrival in Arlington, he noted that you too are a former esteemed member of the WHRB Sports Department. I gave up broadcasting many years ago...but just wanted to say hello and welcome you and the rest of your team (to the extent they are part of the decision) to Arlington.

If you ever are in town and want to say hello or have any questions about the move that I could help with....feel free to ask.

Best,

Mark Schwartz
